They came through as a special train from St. Louis and soon after 9 o'clock this morning informally walked to Governor McKinley's home, which had not yet been put in order after last night's enthusiasm. They were greeted cordially at the doorstep, however, by the Governor and invited inside. The delegation was headed by Hon. Cornelius N. Bliss, president of the American Protective Tariff League; General Horace Porter, president of the Union League; General Anson McCook, of Chamberlain, N. Y .; General E. H. T. Coll's, Commissioner of Public Works, New York; Colonel R. C. Cruger, president of the Park Commission, New York: Colonel Henry H. Prettyman, of Governor Bushnell's staff; James R. "I am very glad, indeed, to meet these citizens of my native town. I was glad United States, and in reply to what your spokesman was kind enough to say of my services. I answer that if I have been associated with any legislation that has given to a single American workingman a day's work at American wages, that is honor enough for me. What we want in this country is a policy that will give to every American workingman American wages; a policy that will put enough money into the treasury of the United States to run the government; a policy that will bring back to us that period of prosperity and of plenty that we enjoyed for more than thirty years. I wish for old Niles prosperity in every workshop and in every factory and in every home love and contentment and happiness."

MANY WEST VIRGINIANS. Twenty-one carloads from Wheeling, W. Va., followed the Niles delegation. The delegation was made up largely of owners and workmen of the La Belle Iron and Tin-plate Company, of that city. They came in two sections, the first being represented by Hon. W. H. Curtis, as spokes-

"Mr. President—If there has ever been a nominee of any political party in the history of this country that had a cinch on that title, you are certainly the man, and as 'Mr. President' I hail you in advance, I have the honor of introducing to you this delegation of iron, steel and tin-plate workers of the La Belle mills. In this delegation we have the president of the mills. gation we have the president of the mill, the directors, the managers and the workingmen. Within four years' time nearly 200 tin mills have been established with a capital of about $9,000,000, employing about 12,000 hands, paying them in wages seven or eight million dollars per year. While we do not come to greet you, Mr. President, as a political organization, yet we cannot help but recognize you as the leader of the party who saved this country from destruction in the sixties and will save it again in the nineties. In conclusion, peragain in the nineties. in conclusion, permit me to present you with this banner, made of McKinley tin at the La Belle mills; and I am instructed to pledge you the enthusiastic support of this delegation from now on until the sun sets on the eve of November next." (Loud applause.) Governor McKinley responded as follows: "I beg to thank this assembly for the generous message of good will and congrat-ulations which you have brought to me from the little Mountain State. There is no tribute greater; there is no tribute that could be dearer to any man than to have it said, as the speaker has been kind enough to say of me, that he contributed in the smallest degree to the establishment gave employment to American labor and brought comfort to American homes. Just after the Wheeling delegations had departed Mr. E. K. Robinson, a director of the Lincoln Club, Chicago, accompanied by Col. W. A. ST. LOUIS, June 20 .- As the result of series of conferences between committees appointed by the seceding silver men of the recent Republican national convention Populists, an address was issued to-night from the headquarters of the People's party national committee, in this city, advising the Populists throughout the country to make Henry M. Teller, of Colorado, their national standard bearer. Immediately after the silver men walked out of the convention, they appointed a committee of which Charles S. Hartman, of Montana; Senator R. F. Pettigrew, of South Dakota, C. F. Cannon, of Utah, and members, to confer with a similar committee of Populists. - That evening, at the Planters' Hotel, they met H. A. Taubeneck, of Illinois, chairman; Dr. Howard S. Tarlor, of Chicago, and Thomas M. Patterson, of Denver, of the national Populist committee, and as a result of that and subsequent conferences the following address was issued. In part, it follows: "Expressly disclaiming any purpose or right to bind any party or person by the views here set forth, we but yield to an overpowering sense of duty in saying what we do to members of the People's party and to all other good citizens, who, appreavert it by acts of exalted patriotism.
